

Advantages of Global Insensitivity!

Elaborating some pros of an insensitive society, where anything hardly makes any difference...

Tsunami, Katrina, East-African Droughts, Oil spills, Earthquakes and not even 9/11. It needs a lot more to shake-up the insensitive souls of the world today. This insensitivity is partly a result of being emotionally, intellectually and socially stuck with the daily jobs and responsibilities. Surprisingly (if at all) there are also some advantages of such an insensitive system. Let's see how...

Indirect Equality

Black and white, Christian and Muslim, rich and poor the differences that took years of struggle in equating; seem to have just disappeared due to the global desensitisation. The issues that created lot of mess all around have witnessed tremendous reduction due to the social laziness across the world. Today, these issues persist, only where the daily routines are free enough to entertain them.

System Flexibility

A well-defined system with sensitive people is very difficult to cheat or infringe at any level; which is definitely not the case with infrastructures made of insensitive masses. This might overall appear to be a disadvantage, but proves to be nothing less than a boon in smaller issues. For the same reason, we can enjoy the liberty of logically resolving many things without getting into the tedious organisational procedures.

Marginal Businesses

Commercially, the insensitivity of the system has given rise to many second-hand and margin-based businesses across the globe. Huge numbers of out-sourcing and service-proving companies have come-up resulting out of organisational lethargy in various industries. Many jobs, which as such would have been a part of same organisation, are getting out-sourced in order to avoid several related issues.

