

23 July 2012

What makes it 'The Hollywood'?

We all know Iranian, Japanese, Chinese, Indian, Korean, French and European movies for their specifically unique flavours. But when it comes to making global cinema, Hollywood is 'the place'. It must not be surprising to know that Hollywood is the best film-making hub in the world and the biggest as well. Whichever movie it is, the quality and detailing, very evidently give it the Hollywood feel. From a viewer's perspective, there are certain elements which enable Hollywood in having such a massive global appeal.

Let's see the main five reasons why it's called 'THE HOLLYWOOD'...

THE REAL CRISIS

Unlike other film industries, Hollywood movies witness some of the most severe crisis whether it is an action-packed superhero movie or issues in the personal life of an average American. The level of problems and their intensity are beyond normal. Moreover, the problems don't come alone; they are many and complexly interconnected. Situations 'beyond obvious', is one of the main features, that viewers expect from their movies. Doing so, reduces the chances of disconnect in the viewer's attention during the movie.

THE INCOMPLETE STORY

Relax; we are not saying that the writers don't complete the story-line! This is about the continuity and leaving an open end for the movie's climax. It is a common trend in Hollywood movies that they don't actually end. There is always a scope of further continuation of the plot.

Also, sometimes, the end of the movie is left to the viewer's opinion and not declared at all. This keeps the viewer engaged with the story-line, even after leaving the theatre-hall.

THE SILENCE

Hollywood movies are very peculiar when it comes to being silent. There are several instances in hundreds of movies where, merely the timing and the situation of occurrence of silence adds intense detailing and emphasis on the story and its characters. Many dialogues amongst the actors that end in silence, give a very strong impact to the situation. The use of silence can be very effectively seen in movies like 'phone booth' and 'paranormal activity' where silence becomes almost as important as a character of the movie.

BACKGROUND SCORES

Ever tried watching your favourite Hollywood movie without background music? It is indeed a very dull experience. This itself, speaks of the importance and engagement which the background scores generate during the movie viewing. The impact of the background score is seen even more prominently in when the background scores almost becomes a part of the character's personality. Hollywood very tactfully manages to use music not only as a support for the screenplay, but also as an essential element of scene and character building.

THE CASTING EXCELLENCE

Very rarely do we feel any need to suggest a better substitute for any character in the Hollywood movies. The appropriateness of the Hollywood casting hardly leaves any scope for the critics, to comment on the performance effectiveness of the cast in the movie. This is the very reason why characters of Hollywood movies often become legends. The credit goes to the cast selecting and filtering procedure opted by the casting directors for even the smallest of the roles that share only few seconds of screen time.